Domain Capital Group Adds Patrick Neuman to Business Development Team

Seasoned investment banking professional joins growing firm with $6.1 billion in total assets under management

ATLANTA (October 6, 2021) – Domain Capital Group, LLC, a comprehensive private investment management services firm, today announced the addition of Patrick Neuman as director of business development.

Neuman brings more than a decade of investment banking experience and a broad background in private capital fundraising with a specialization in placing traditional and niche alternative investment vehicles. His role will include identifying and assisting with securing new investors for the Atlanta-based firm.

“We believe Patrick has a unique skillset, having participated in capital market fundraising, business development and project management,” said Patrick R. Leardo, executive managing director and CEO of Domain Capital Group. “We are committed to building our team and forging new partnerships and he is the ideal candidate to help us expand our offerings and client base.”

Neuman previously served as director at Artist Capital Markets, where he secured funds for a variety of alternative investments. Prior to that, he was director at Trailmark, Inc., where he participated in alternative investment fundraising and played a key-role in the company’s global business development efforts.

“I have closely followed Domain’s growth and success for years and knew they were at an inflection point where my skill set was a good fit and I could be a valuable asset in the overall scope of client services,” said Neuman. “This is a unique opportunity for me to help drive investment strategy and support the firm’s growth. I’m extremely excited to get started.”

Neuman earned a Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from Georgetown University. He is a former member of Southern Capital Forum, an organization dedicated to fostering professional relationships among members of the Southeast private capital community.
